WRITTEN CONFESSION

$30,000 for Work, But of Time.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Warsaw, December 16.-A man by ne name of Wolfe Lindenfeld, alias William Linde, has been arrested by the Polish police here as a suspect in connection with the Wall street bomb explosion in New York, September 16, out in the heart of downtown Atlanta 1920. The Warsaw police said they made the arrest at the request of the American department of justice. They claimed to have in their po man's full confession of being con- alty as that man who shot down two nected with the disaster.

Lindenfeld is described as a cousin of Rosa Luxemburg, the German radcal socialist lender, who was shot to leath in Berlin early in 1919, after ames of the ringleaders and the New York city address where the bomb was manufactured, and says also that the bomb was intended for J. P. Mor-gan, but exploded prematurely.

United States Agent Asks Arrest. Silvester Cosgrove, an American de partment of justice agent, at whose request, in behalf of the department, the arrest of the suspect was brought bout, declared that Lindenfield has illing to return to America where wife and two children in New York. In the suspect's written confession cording to the agent, he says that nd that the money was received by New York communists from the Mosow third internationale.

last spring. The Polish police say he was exposed in Warsaw in 1906 as a ussian secret agent, fleeing to Amerca shortly afterward.

Names Five Principals. According to Cosgrove and Paul Al ndorf, who trailed Lindenfield, the spect in his confession names five rincipals now in Europe, who shared he money for the job. One of the principals, the confession shows, was woman who from a window opposite Ir. Morgan's office observed ancier's movements for days and om her reports the nomb was timed explode about the usual time Mr.

The confession, as described by the American agents, terms the prema-Lindenfield estimating that the bomb ploded from ten to fifteen minutes fore the intended time. The plotters also accuse the driver of the wagon which brought the bomb to Wall street of having erred in not leaving the wagon nearer the Morgan office.

Morgan came out for luncheon.

Cosgrove and Altendorf estimate that Lindenfield's confession covers ore than 10,000 words, and assert other information in their possession.

Further portions of the confession referred to by Cosgrove show that (Continued on Page 3, Column 3.) Continued on Page 7, Column 7.

Waldorf Salad 2 cups peeled diced apples, 11-2 cups diced celery, 2 cups diced pineapples, 1 cup seedless raisins or grapes. Mix with Duke's Mayonnaise. Serve on lettuce leaf.

Fruit Salad

Not even in your own kitchen can you make such delicious mayonnaise of such consistency, and flavor-as Duke's. It is the only genuine-fresh egg-uncooked mayonnaise on the market, packed in attractive glass jars that will keep indefinitely.

Mrs. Duke personally directs the preparation of her mayonnaise just as she did before it had gained such fame in the Carolinas and now throughout the South. In few places over the entire country are there cooks whose mayonnaise comes up to the standard of Mrs. Duke's.

Dukes Home-Made Mayonnaise

The ingredients that go into Duke's are selected with the utmost care. Only the very best grade of fresh country eggs and highest quality salad oils are used. You couldn't select your own materials more carefully. The cost of Duke's is just about the same as when you make it yourself—without figuring all the time and trouble required.

Ready for any emergency

Nothing in your refrigerator or pantry will take the place of Duke's Home-Made Mayonnaise. For the unexpected guest, for Sunfor the unexpected guest, for sur-day Tea, and on the cook's aft-ernoon off—the preparation of delicious salads and sandwiches is a simple matter. The biggest job is over when the mayonnaise is made. Keep a half dozen jars of Duke's on your pantry shelf, it will prove your best friend in emergencies.

Supporters Silent.

The same attitude of silence has been adopted by administration senators and after the three-hour attack on the four-power Pacific treaty today by Senator Reed, Senator Curtis, of Kansas, their party whip, announced that there would be no discussion of the subject until it is formally submitted by President Harding.

Mr. Curtis' statement was made, it was understood, as an explanation for the fact that no speeches had been made in favor of the treaty and in reply to the attacks of Senators been made in favor of the treaty and in reply to the attacks of Senators Reed and Borah, republican. Idaho. Taken in conjunction with the party policy of the democrats who have decided to maintain silence, leaders on both sides predicted a minimum of debate on the new pact until after the armament conference is ended. At that time, it has been indicated, all of the agreements reached in the conference will be forwarded to the capitol.

Senator Reed, however, announce Senator Reed, however, announced another purpose. He proposed to send "the treaty to the American people just as was done with the treaty of Versailles," and he predicted that by the time the voters have an opportunity to act on the question, "they will know that this treaty has all of the vices charged to the treaty of Versailles with none of its virtues."

Raps Other Powers. Mr. Reed declared he could se nothing but trouble in the new agreement and attacked the administration for what he described as "changing face," saying there was no difference, except grammatical changes, be-tween the four-power pact and the Versailles covenant. His speech throughout was interspersed with at-tacks on Great Britain and Japan, each of whom he declared had come to the armament conference with the

"This treaty ties us up with the only nation that has shown us an ugly pair of teeth in years." he continued. "I wonder what the people of the Pacific coast think of their new protector. I wonder if they feel that they can go to bed at night and say 'oh, well, Japan will watch over us. Ah, ah, senators, we refuse to make a treaty to protect France from Germany, but we make an alliance with Japan to protect her loot."

with Japan to protect her loot. The Missouri senator said that although some of the sponsors of the treaty were talking privately of the good fellowship to be brought between the nations by the treaty, he could not arrive at any such conclusion.

"This longing for good fellowship is very good as oratorical extrava-gance," he added, "but this silly long-

While the completion of the super-Ho.ds would have given the British navy two battleships theoretically able to blow out of the water any other ship afloat, it would have locked up too large a proportion of British capital ship tonnage in two huge units. It would, moreover, have seemed to show a disposition on the part of the British delegates to avail themselves of the readjustment entailed by Japan's retention of the Mutsu, to build vessels of a greater size than the 35,000 tons limit fixed as the maximum for the eventual re-Adjustment Regretted.

Though the retention of the Mutsu (40,000 tons) by Japan, and of two Marylands of approximately 33,000 tons each by the United States, will place the British navy in a relatively waker position until the new British capital ships are completed, the situation is regarded with equanimity by the British naval experts. It is certainly regrettable that Japanese insistence on the retention of the Mutsu should have necessifated a readjustment of the original plan. It is obviously inconsistent for the powers to continue to spend large sums on battleships which they sincerely hope never to use. But the life of nations, as of individuals, is compounded of illogicalities. The present at least avoids wounding the national pride of the Japanese in their newest warship. The American-British-Japanese ratio depends upon a suitable agreement with France and Italy as their capital ships. Discussion of a basis for this agreement began in the use of a gun. The supreme court reversed the decision of the lower court and sent the case back for trial. The case will be remembered as one of the most sensational in north Georgia.

Early in May Sheriff Catron, together with two other officers, were near Rossville, Ga., hunting for whis-ky runners carrying whisky into Chattanooga. They found Douglas and another man at a car. JAIL-NO FINES.

Hereafter violators of the Vol stead act who may be haled before a federal judge in the New York district for trial may just as well leave their money at home.

It will do them no good, for liberty there has been withdrawn from the market-it cannot be bought. In other words, the judges have quit imposing fines and will substitute jail sentences.

This policy was announced from the bench the other day by United States District Judge Learned Hand, and concurred in unanimously by his fellow judges of the New York district.

According to Judge Hand, from now on all persons pleading guilty to a first offense against the prohibition laws will be sent to jail for fourteen days; and sentences of one month or more in jail will be given first offenders convicted after trial.

He did not state explicitly, but left the inference that offenders ice; bat, while he is not afraid of with previous convictions against a deficit, he thinks it ought to be their records would be dealt with

This is the way and the only possible way, to discourage the bootlegger and break up the miserable traffic in blind tiger whisky that is polluting the country and not only making a mockery of a erty by the payment of a fine that represents but a small part of a week's profits, it is as useless to try to stop the flow of liquor as to attempt to sweep back the tide with a kitchen broom.

But bootleggers and blind tigers and whisky runners dread jail.

Give them to understand that it they are caught, and whether tried and found guilty, or plead guilty, they will go to jail, without the alternative of a fine in either case, they will think a long time before "taking a chance" that, under the fining system, is merely charged on the debit side of their books.

Federal Judge Hand and his New York associates have established a precedent that should be followed by every judge, federal, state or municipal, in the country.

It is folly for peace officers to be expected to control the crime situation - which seems to be growing worse throughout the country-so long as the judges continue the policy of turning convicted criminals loose upon payment of fines.

And it is safe to say that the present crime situation is due more to laxity in the enforcement of the prohibition laws than to anything else.

"LET'S WORK IT OUT!"

As a story of downright courage and level-headed heroism it would be hard to beat the report of the accident that recently happened to the submarine S-48 during her trial cruise in Long Island sound.

According to the press account of the adventure, the craft, attempting a dive, flooded and sank in 80 feet of water. She was poised with her stern near the bottom, her bow tilted toward the surface.

For several hours the submarine lay in that position, the members of her crew resorting to every means their ingenuity suggested to float her, but without favorable rethe franked matter it handles. Last year, he points out, the department carried matter of this kind which, had the services been paid for at regular postage rates. would have increased the postal in-such service. It is obviously unfair and detrimental to the service for the postal department to be charged with the cost of transporting this immense mass of "dead head" matter without credit for it in the budget.

Some means ought to be devised whereby the transportation cost of franked matter would be charged of the government in which the free "business" originated, and accredcouraging. Mr. Hays does not hesitate to let it be known that, regardless of how much his department may run behind in a monetary sense, there is to be no cutting of salaries of postal employees if he can help it.

In his position upon this question, as in his attitude toward the frank, Postmaster General Hays is entitled to, and will receive, the hearty support of the American

The movement now afoot for the rganization of cotton farmers into a giant co-operative marketing association upon the California plan should

"In four out of the seven towns where I have been," he replied, "large numbers of the banks and stores closed their doors to help attendance at the meetings, and I was time after time made conscious of a vision and a spirit of helpfulness among many of these folk that made me proud of Georgia's country townspeople. In Winder Friday morning, for example, Banker Mayne arose toward the conclusion of the meeting and announced that of the meeting and announced that the bankers of that town were 'strongly for this proposition,' and un-equivocally told the farmers to sign the contract.

CITY WARD LINES WILL BE CHANGED BY CITY COUNCIL

Councilman J. R. Nutting an nounced Friday that he will introduce in city council Monday afternoon a report on probable ward line changes. Mayor Key and others, he said, have agreed that since Kirkwood has become a part of the city, certain ward line changes will be necessary. There was no agreement by Atlanta to give Kirkwood a separate ward, but the promise was made that in the event of the merger, the territory comprising Kirkwood would be left intact as a community. It will therefore become a part of a ward already created. It is expected that portions of the present ward would then be sliced off and lines readjusted.

Mountain school.

The plot centers around a college town in the middle west. Miss Abigail Persons, a very prim and determined spinster, has planned that her niece, Lucile Persons, shall marry Arthur Watson, the son of her neighbor and life-long friend. Lucile has other ideas, and returning from school brings her chums for a house party. In her effort to upset Aunt Abigail's plans, she has each girl to pretend that she is Lucile, so that Arthur will not know her. But Jack, Arthur's friend, also takes matters in hand, and in the mix-up Arthur falls in love with Lucile, thinking she is Miss Abigail's new maid. The play is full of wit and himor from start to finish.

Dinner Party. The first formal expression of hospitality in honor of the distinguished visitors was the dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ashcraft entertained at their home in Druid Hills Friday

The lovely home was beautifully decorated with the reds and greens of the Christmas season. A handsome silver loving cup filled with poinsetias formed the centerpiece of the dinner table. Unshaded red tapers harmonized with the other decorations.

There the visiting party was entertained by the officers and directors of the Uncle Remus Memorial association.

Pink roses and narcissi, combined with ferns, placed in baskets and vases, adorned the reception rooms.

The tea table in the dining room had in the center a basket of pink roses and narcissi. At one end was arranged a silver service, from which Mrs. Edwin Camp, a daughter of Uncle Remus, poured tea. Silver compotes placed at intervals held pink and white mints.

Mrs. Joel Chandler Harris and family, which includes Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Evelyn Harris, and Mr. Joel Chandler Harris, received Mrs. Lanier and hers party. Mrs. Henry Lanier was presented a book, one of the first written by Mr., Harris, by Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, president of the Uncle Remus Memorial association.

Christmas season is a bad time for the woman who has made up her mind to reduce. All Christmas delicacies seem to be fattening, and the spirit of the entire season, that of eating as much as one can possibly manage. First of all every one gives candy. Now one chocolate cream has a caloric value of 100. It may be that in order to reduce you should not eat more than 1,500 or 2,000 calories of food every day. If you ate 15 or 20 chocolate creams (and I have seen many women eat that much or more during a matinee) you will have eaten your entire day's allowance of nourishment. One pound of chocolate has a caloric value of 5,625, more than two days' nourishment, you see.

Wellington Fields was asked to hurry to San Francisco and represent the secret service in connection with the arrival of Mr. Tangahato.

The chairman of the reception committee of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce was being counselled by Fields. "Have a picked company at the banquet, and let me say a few words before the distinguished deaf visitor arrives."

The tables were set. The speakers' table was banked with flowers. The flags of the allied nations were grouped about the banquet hall. An occhestra was tuning up on a platform. All the guests were standing at their seats.

form. All the guests were standing at their seats.

Then Wellington Fields addressed them.

"Gentlemen, this is a serious occasion," he said. "What will happen here tonight should make Mr. Tangahato less of a danger to our country. I am going to take you all into my confidence, including the orchestra.

"This gentleman is shamming deafness. We will expose it by shamming dumbness. When he arrives at this hall I want everyone of you to be talking animatedly but without making a sound. I want you to applaud Mr. Tangahato as he comes in, but without a whisper of noise. Then I want the orchestra to appear to play like mad without a single tone coming from violins or piano.

"Don't touch knives or forks or anything that might be heard. The thick carpet will deaden any movement of feet or chairs. The waiters are to be kept out until I give the signal. This must be a hall of absolute silence—until you hear me talk."

The Japaness smiled right and left when he entered on the arm of the chairman of the reception committee whose hushed lips were moving eloquently. The silent hand-clapping was supposedly stilled by the chairman as he took his place at the left of the guest of honor at the speakers' table. The chairman gave an address of welcome, standing, without uttering a syllable. The orchestra went through the motions of a lively overture.

Mr. Tangahato turned greenishly pale. He said he felt fill and asked to he excused a minute. Wellington fields went into a little parlor with him.

The Mortgaged Wife : By Mildrea Barbour

Installment No. 3.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY. Jeanne Dare, known in the little lows town whence she came as plain Jane Dare, has set herself up in New York as a wealthy woman in the hope of snaring a rich husband. In this effort she is making use of Richard Canby, well-known man about town.

The Means to an End. At Canby's knock Jeanne did not rise from her chair.

"Come," she called in a sweetly modulated voice.

modulated voice.

The door opened slowly and Canby, heavy, flabby, irreproachable in his evening attire, stood there. The fur coat with its rolling collar, opened across his immaculate white shirtfront, was the same drab color as his complexion.

complexion.

He held a long green pasteboard box from which leafy stems protruded.

"Oh! How nice! For me?"

Jeanne rose with swift grace and crossed the room, holding out her hand.

Canby raised it to his lips with a bow that was better intended than executed. He was breathing a trifle fast after the walk down the corridor.

"Corsage bouquet's in there, too," he said, handing Jeanne the box. "Fool florist hadn't a boy to deliver 'em at this hour."

at this hour."

"They're exquisite!" Jeanne raised the box lid and lifted out a glowing mass of American Beauties. "And the orchids, oh, how gorgeous!"

She took the corsage ornament, pale than and lavender cupped in silver tille, and tested the effect against her scant bodice. Her fingers, exploring for a pin dew out a slender degree.

wilted."

Jeanne drew out the pin and examined it. Exquirely wrought Rose diamonds! No value indeed! Oh, well, if he wanted to be so generous the family to exchange gifts on Christ-mas day is at the breakfast table or the dinner table. Then all are to-gether and in just the mood for sur-

without encour gement—

"You look geat!" Canby eyed her eritically while she adjusted the flowers. He wore the same expression when he looked over promising two-year-olds for his racing stables. Just Enough Bluff.

"Say, you certainly can knock the spots off these New York dames." I dare say that's what comes of living so long abroad. Paris, wasn't it, where you were educated?"

Jeanne laughed.
"But no! Paris only on very rare and naughty occasions. I am a country product, straight from the little convent in the south of France where the good nuns—"

She stopped, clever enough to realize that suggestion is better—and safer—than details.
"I'm glad you wore that gown," nze that suggestion is better—and safer—than details.

"I'm glad you wore that gown," Canby went on. It's my favorite. Did I tell you that this dinner party tonight was especially for you?"
"No," Jeanne turned surprised eyes to his.

"No," Jeanne turned surprised eyes to his.

He smiled grimly.

"Well, you're to be the guest of shonor. I only made up my mind ten minutes ago, when I got out of the car here at the hotel and ran straight into Adele Parkinson."

"Who is Adele Parkinson?"

"Old flame of mine," Canby replied carelessly, reaching heaville for the matches on Jeanne's taboret. "Been away two years. Lord, how women remember! She seemed to think we could start right in again where we left off. Had to ask her to dinner. Thought it was a good plan to show her a new star in the firmament right off and save some tiresome hedging."

Jeanne laughed as she lifted her wrap from the couch.

"So I'm to act a new role tonight! Cinderella and her pumpkin coach will play a one-night stand at the Ritz!"

"Where do you get that stuff!"
Canby followed flights of fancy with something of the agility of a rhinoceros. "I don't see anything funny about picking you." You're the best about picking you. You're the best looking woman I've seen in New York for a long while."

"Merci bien! Yous etes tres bon!"

murmured Jeanne.
"Uh huh!" Canby blinked heavily.
"Ready? Parkinson's waiting in the

They went down the velvet-carpeted corridor, through the preternatural hush which is broken only by the sliding girdle of the elevators. Other guests in evening attire were waiting for the car. They spoke in well-modulated voices, some of them with an English accent.

Jeanne looked them over critically Jeanne looked them over critically from under drooping lids.
None of the women were better looking or better dressed than she. And Canby—he looked as financially superior to the other men—well, as he did to Henry Harrison!
With an inward smile Jeanne wondered whom Henry was taking to the movies tonight in his dilapidated flivver. She had not yet shaken herself free of the memories which Canby's entrance has interrupted.
"Who are your other guests to-

"Who are your other guests tonight?" she asked Canby. "All people I know?"
He nodded.
"All except young Barstowe. Vic'sbeen in California ever since I met you. He's a great boy!"
"Vic Barstowe." replied Jeanne, wrinkling ber brow. "The name sounds familiar."
"Dare say it does," smiled Canby, grimly. "Sole heir to the Barstowe millions. Old Phil Barstowe certainly knew how to salt it away."
Jeanne was instantly alert, but she hid it under an air of languid indifference.

hid it under an air of langua liamference.

"How interesting," she drawled.

"Vic's a digraed nice chap," Canby went on. "Distinguished himself in the world war all right. And handsome as a young god. Women are crazy about him."

A Droll Guardian.

"How amusing," murmured Jeanne.
"I dare say he's fearfully spoiled."

"I dare say he's fearfully spoiled."
Canby shook his head.
"Funny thing, but he's not. Guess there's enough of the Phil in him not to have his head turned by a lot of people who fawn at the feet of money."

Jeanne flushed but said nothing.
"I'm fond of the lad," Canby went on. "Try to keep an eye on him and all that sort of thing. The old man doean't understand that Vic has young, red blood in his veins. Put a tight red blood in his veins. Put a tight rein on him and he'll bolt sure!"

Jeanne looked up from under de mure lashes.
"Are you a good influence for reck less young men?"

Canby laughed good-humoredly.
"You're an impertinent little devil! Yes, I claim I'm the best possible influence. I've been through the mili myself. I can help them when they get into deep water."

"But I suppose it never occurred to you to warn them against the deep water?"

"Lard!" he scrutinized her amusedly. "Not moralizing, are you?"

Jeanne caught hegself up quickly.
"Hardly," she laughed lightly. "I'don't know the meaning of the word!"

"Thought so," he grunted. "If you were a moralist, you wouldn't have a rose-leaf complexion and lips like that and a hody—"

His glance swept down her slim figure, clad in its sheath-like black, and instinctively Jeanne drew her wrat closer until she was enveloped in its folds.

The footman was holding open the door of the limousine.

Jeanne, one foot raised to the illuminated step, looked up to encounter the bright-eye gaze of a girl who wa already seated in the car.

House Adjourns Friday Honoring Drowned Member

Washington, December 16 .- The house adjourned today until tomor row, out of respect for Representative John A. Elston, California, whose body was found last night in the Po-tomac river. Immediately after con-vening, the house adopted resolutions of regret and authorized selection of a committee of eighteen members to accompany the body to California in case burial is made there. case burial is made there.

Funeral arrangements were being held in abeyance today pending receipt of instructions from members of Mr. Elston's family.

His colleagues and friends, dumbfounded at his death, were unable to ascribe any motive for Mr. Elston's decision to end his life except that he had become depressed over the refusal of congress to authorize construction of a naval base at Alameda, located in his district.

Close friends of Mr. Elston today declared that the note left by the dead representative had not been correctly deciphered. As given out last night, the note declared Mr. Elston was "in a chain of circumstances that spell ruin, although my offense was innocently made in the beginning."

The words deciphered as "offense" and innocently," his associates declared, really were "offer" and unconditionally," making the phrase read, "although my offer was unconditionally made in the beginning."

Another error was made, it was declared today in reading "people" for "project" in the sentence, "My staying means embarrassment to my district and tax a worthy project, clean and generous."

The correct interpretation, Mr. El-

The correct interpretation, Mr. Elston's friends asserted, gave weight to the belief that the Alameda project was uppermost in his mind.

Washington, December 16.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—At a conference of the members of the Georgia delegation in the lower house of congress today, Representative Walter C. He succeeds Representative Carl Vinson, of the

The acceptance of Congressman Wise is significant in that it sets at rest the various rumors that he will not be a candidate in 1922 to succeed himself.

Several announcements for congress have already been made from the sixth district, most of them on the assumption that Mr. Wise will not offer for re-election. It has been reported that he had reached such a conclusion owing the like of the control of the contr he had reached such a conclusion owing to ill-health.

The facts are that Congressman Wise has not only entirely recovered his health, but is at the time unusually vigorous and active, and fully intends to succeed himself if the voters of the sixth district so elect.

That fact was determined beyond question of speculation by today's action of his colleagues, and the congressman's ready acceptance.

The congressional national committee will at once organise into active campaign service, determined to materially reduce the republican majority, if not, indeed, capture the sixty-eighth house.

HEARINGS ON TARIFF TO CLOSE JANUARY 3

imports on the American industry were presented today to senate tariff farmers. Horace B. Cheney, of New York city, representing the Silk Association of America, said the indusional was "seriously menaced." While Samuel Kridel, of New York city, representing other manufacturers as well as traders and importers, testified that since the imports constituted only 6 per cent of consumption they could have little effect and on the whole would be beneficial by stimulating American manufacturers.

Hearings on the silk schedule virtually were closed and it was announced that all hearings on the Fordney bill would be closed on January 3. The rewriting of the measure then will be started with a view to its presimports on the American industry will be started with a view to its presentation to the senate as speedy as practicable, probably in February. Tomorrow the finance committee will take up articles under the sundries schedule, such as buttons, toys, matches and feathers protection for the artificial silk industry was asked by Roland L. Taylor, of Philadelphia, representing the Tubiz Artificial Silk company, which recently established a large plant at Hopewell, Va. The witness produced various samples of clothing made from artificial silk for the inspection of senators.

The capacity of the Hopewell plant is about 17,000,000 pounds of yarn annually, Mr. Taylor said, the product being made wholly from cotton linters. In order for his concern to compete in the American market with foreign manufacturers it must have a duty of 85 cents a pound on yarns, he said, or 381-2 per cent ad valorem on the American valuation. The rate in the Fordney bill is 45 cents a pound or 23 per cent ad valorem on American valuation.

In his presentation of the case for the silk association, Mr. Cheney told the committee that imports of silk were increasing steadily while domestic production was declining, bein; now about 50 per cent of normal. He presented charts to show that imports had increased enormously under the Underwood tariff bill and asked will be started with a view to its pres-revised so as to provide for a duty of 381-2 per cent ad valorem on American valuation or 55 per cent on foreign valuation.

On the other hand, Mr. Kridel protested against what he termed the high rates in the Fordeny bill, and charged that "the extremists and other high protectionists" were "desirous of prohibiting any silk goods from being imported into this country." In 1914, he said, American manufacturers supplied 88 per cent of the silk consumed in the United States and despite the increase in imports, this percentage had increased to 94 per cent in 1919. The value of the domestic output in that year was $688,000,000, he testified.

BARRED FOR USE

OF CITY SEWAGE

The use of abandoned wells for sewage disposal by some residents in discontinuing this charge in Georgia will become effective December 20, it was announced at the office of the commission Friday. The surcharge is 50 per cent of the Pullman fare, including berths and chairs, and the revenue thus derived went to the railroads.

The request for a rehearing was filed by representatives of the railroads. The commission declined to grant the rehearing on the ground that the carriers failed to show cause at the first hearing why this charge should not be eliminated.

At its session Friday the commission, by agreement of all parties concerned, postponed the Fruit Belt Telephone company's request for a recerned, postponed the Fruit Belt Telephone company's request for a revision of rates until later. The Fruit Belt Telephone company has head-quarters at Fort Valley.

Several other minor cases were heard by the commission at its Friday session, and decision in them will be announced later.

JUDGE E. J. REAGAN NAMED ATTORNEY

FOR RAIL BOARD

Announcement of the appointment of Judge E. J. Reagan, of McDonough, as special attorney for the state railroad commission to succeed Judge James K. Hines, was made Friday by Governor Thomas W. Hardwick. Judge Rines retires to assume his duties as a member of the supereme court to succeed Judge Walter F. George, whose resignation is effective January 1, 1922.

Judge Reagan is one of the best-known men in Georgia politics. He has served as chairman of the state has served as chairman of the state democratic executive committee, has presided as chairman of several state conventions and has served several terms as judge of the Flint judicial circuit. He was one of the leaders in Governor Hardwick's campaign.

Recently when Judge Hines was named by Governor Hardwick's campaign.

Recently when Judge Hines was named by Governor Hardwick as successor to Judge George on the supreme court bench the governor tendered the appointment as special attorney for the railroad commission to Judge J. J. Flynt, of Griffin, Judge Flynt took the tender of appointment under advisement for several weeks and then told the governor he could not accept it.

May Go on Stand In Eastlake Trial Montross, Va., December 16.—The prosecution rested its case late today

Montross, Va., December 16.—The rosecution rested its case late today and the defense began the presenta tion of evidence in the trial of Roger D. Eastlake, former petty officer, who is charged jointly with Miss Sarah E. Knox, Baltimore nurse, with the murder of his wife, Margaret, September 30, last, at Colonial Beach, Va. Before adjournment was taken several defense witnesses had testified as to Eastlake's habits and home life. After the prosecution had rested its case, Judge J. W. Chinn, accompanied by counsel for both the prosecution and defense, visited a nearby hotel and interrogated Eastlake's two children, Roger, Jr., 9, and Margaret. 5. The trial had reached the stage where the children were the only ty remaining witnesses to testify for the prosecution. Judge Chinn, after questioning the little ones for

Time Element Enters.

Defense attorneys, through witnesses, sought to break down the contention of the prosecution that Eastlake was in his home at the hour his wife met her death and through Franklin Carrothers, a fellow worker, with Bastlake at the Dahlgren proving grounds, succeeded in getting into the record uncontested Carrothers' statement that Eastlake was at work at about the time the murder is alleged to have been committed.

A. R. Crowthers, of Ocean City, N. J., in testifying for the defense, identified the hatchet found in the Eastlake home on the morning of the murder as the one which was given him by Miss Knox at his home in Ocean City to sharpen, on an occasion when the nurse was at that place. Crowthers' wife, also a witness, corroborated her husband's testimony.

What was described as a "love letter" from Eastlake to Miss Knox and which was said to have been found in the possession of the nurse on the morning of the crime by Private Detective Tom Boulwer, of Colonial Beach, who testified for the prosecution that the woman tore the letter in bits when he attempted to wrest it from her, was read to the court. The epistle was worded in such a manner, it was contended, to show that Eastlake desired Miss Knox to visit him at Colonial Beach.

Boulwer also identified a note Time Element Enters.

Heard Child Scream.

Heard Child Scream.

Mrs. W. E. Carrothers, sister-in-law of the witness, testified she had heard a child's scream before her brother-in-law left the house and that it was more distinct after he had opened the door. She stated further that she met Eastlake on his way back to his home with her husband and told him of having heard a child scream. She said that Eastlake replied: "I hear one, too."

The defense in opening its case called Dr. W. L. Brent, of Colonial Beach, and the physician's testimony was confined almost entirely to the lapse of time after death of rigor mortis to develop. He concluded by stating that his personal opinion was that Mrs. Eastlake had been killed at 5:30 o'clock in the morning. Dr. James Whitfield, of Richmond, testified along similar lines. fied along similar lines.

This afternoon, at Marist field, you will be given an opportunity to see the Atlanta soccer club in action. If you know the game, it is fairly certain that you'll be out hand to take an active part, for soccer is no respector of age, numbering among its adherents men of all ages.

But if you don't know a soccer ball from a hockey puck, it is time you you found out. It is a game that will appeal to all of us.

Tech students have taken up soccer and expect to put two varsity teams in the field shortly. Mike Donahue's Auburn Tigers have also promised to turn out an eleven. Intercollegiate soccer in the south holds fair to become a reality.

Meanwhile, the amateur teams, such as Atlanta, Lithonia and others, are busy whipping their men into condition. A game between Atlanta and Lithonia has been scheduled for Janaury 7, and other contests are in sight.

Here in Atlanta there are just about enough experienced players to lay the basis for a good team. The local management is anxious to have newcomers report, for they will be given ample opportunity to learn the game and to break into the regular line-up. The kick-off this afternoon is at 2:30 o'clock.

The club owners then started a campaign to share in the proceeds, but the Memphis and the Fort Worth players were permitted to pocket most of the receipts in the last series. But it was plain that it would be the last time the entire dividend was to be divided in this way.

O course, the proceeds will be but a drop in the bucket toward maintaining the clubs of the Southern league during the summer campaign, but you'll have to give the magnates credit for insuring a nice little return at the close of the season, especially when the lean winter months are just about to set in.

The Draughon Business college's quintet will engage in their second battle of the season this afternoon, when they meet that Griffin High school girls' quintet on the Marist court at 2:30 o'clock. The Draughon team has been working hard for the past week for the game today and Coach Bean reports that his girls are in the best of shape for the battle with the girls from Griffin. Draughon won their first game of the season last Saturday when they beat Fairburn High school by a neat margin. The lineup, as will probably be stated for Draughon, is as follows: Misse Lola Gannon, center; Misses Frances Phillips and Loretto Condon, forwards, and Misses Alice Wilson and Doris Walker, guards. than good to the general situation. Germany's announcement that she cannot pay at least gives Lloydand from the pay the amount due next month on reparations. This action of exchange was believed here to mean that some definite arranged ment will be made between Lloyd-George and Briand something to talk about.

It was learned today that representatives of the large sugar interpretor France part of the last cash payment received, that is, the billion gold marks or $250,000,000 remaining undistributed. This will keep France out of the Ruhr valley.

In the last settlement France got coal, but being flooded with that commodity turned it back to Germany at half price, Germany, however, being credited with full value. That experience as well as the decline in marks, which has demoralized business in general, will, it is believed here, bring France to a realization of existing conditions and that hence Germany will be given a breathing spell in the payment of reparations.

It is believed here that Germany does not want to pay, but that she could not pay the amount fixed even if she wanted to, and that by trying to pay it she would do more harm George and Briand something to talk about.

It was learned today that representatives of the large sugar interests here will go to Washington next Tuesday to appear before the senate finance committee to arge that the tax on Cuban sugar be re-established. A representative of Industrial Alcohol will go with the sugar men.

With the federal reserve system showing a reserve ratio of 72.6, a loss of 1-2 of 1 per cent against last week and the first weekly decrease in more than a month, it is of interest to point out that the statements of the twelve individual banks show seven decreases in reserve ratio and five increases. The decreases were in Boston, New York, Cleveland, Atlanta, Kansas City, Dallas, San Francisco. The increases were at Philadelphia, Richmond, Chicago, St. Louis and Minneagolis. There was some nervousness over the situation as to German reparations payments at the opening. Liverpool made a fairly steady showing, and first prices here were one point higher to one point lower, but active months showed net losses of 5 to 8 points right after the call, with March selling at 17.42. The comparatively small offerings were readily absorbed on this setback, however, and the market turned firmer before the end of the morning on talk of light private ginning returns and reiterated reports of an improving trade demand. while covering was also reported for western and Wall street account, and there was some trade buying on the advance, which carried March contracts up to 17.80 in the late trading.

Last prices were 4 or 5 points off from the best under realizing. Private returns were said to indicate a ginning of 7,800,000 bales to December 13, or about 159,000 for the first half of December, which was regarded as indicating that the crop was no larger than the estimate of last Monday. A local exporter reported bids from Europe close to a working basis, suggesting that business might soon develop, and there were Galveston advices indicating that a large amount of ocean freight room had been engaged for shipment from there to Japan early in the new year. Week-end figures showed a falling off in the movement of cotton, both in and out of sight, as compared with the previous week, but indicated a further decrease of 20,459 bales in the world's visible supply of American.

NEW ORLEANS HIGHER ON GINNING REPORTS

New Orleans, December 16.—Small ginning returns from private sources, and another hole in the visible supply, put the price of cotton higher today. After declines of 7 to 8 points during the first call, the market braced up and rose to net advances which, with several small recessions, were maintained during the rest of the session. In the late trading prices were 18 to 29 points higher than the close of yesterday, while the clase showed net gains on the day of 11 24 points. January traded as low as 16.64, rose to 17.00 cents and closed at 16.95.

The early buying was due to a private bureau report of 7.800,000 bales ginned to the 13th of December, indicating production for this last ginning period of but 160,000 bales. Reports of a somewhat better spot demand helped values after the effect of this report wore off. In the early afternoon reactions of about 10 points were caused by the unfavorable impression left by mill takings for the week of 360,000 bales, against 386,000 last week, but a little later the market strengthened again because of the decrease in the visible supply of Amrican cotton of 22,349 bales, against an increase this week last year of 112,205, and because, for the first time in months, the visible was under the figures of a year ago, 4,246,669 bales, against 4,372,585. In the last half hour of the session lighest levels were reached on a report credited to the American Cotton association, stating that ginning this last period was 178,000 bales and claiming that only a small percentase of the crop was left to be ginned, that there would be a sensational drop in ginning in the near future, and contending that the crop had been hadly overestimated. An estimate of the average weight of bales this season of only 482 pounds was also made.

MORE SPECULATIVE

1.1.1.1.1.1.New York, December 16.—The aggressive buying movement that feature yesterday's session of the stock exchange was lacking today. Trading was fairly active, but ran more to speculative or selected issues.

Overnight developments, such as sex, commany's virtual default, the closing of coal mines in the Pennsylvania district and prospective reductions in automobile prices, were among the several incidents calculated to diminish bullish enthusiasm.

The cuts in prices announced by one of the chief subsidiaries of the United States Steel corporation and further declines in quotations for scrap iron and steel were indicative of the backward trend in that industry of the backward trend in that industry.

Foreign exchanges continued to be adversely affected by the German situation. Coalers finally threw off professional selling pressure, but many of the less important industrials and miscellaneous stocks reacted 1 to 2 points on moderate offerings.

Oils again supplied a disproportionate share of the day's business, especially "condary, or low grade issues. Steels and equipments were mixed, as were also motors and their regular close.

Call loans opened and renewed into next week at 5 per cent, the rate later rising to 5 1-2 angainst were rising to 5 1-2 angainst were rising to 5 1-2 angainst were resided to the result and the regular close.

NEW YORK BONDS SEND GRAIN DOWN

Chicago, December 16.—Rain and snow over large sections of the winter crop belt with reports that drouthy regions in the southwest had received some moisture tended today to make wheat prices average lower. The finish was unsettled, at 5-8c net decline to 1-4c advance. Corn closed 1-8c off to 1-4c up. Oats gained 1-4 to 3-8@1-2c, and in provisions the outcome varied from 5c loss to a rise of 7 1-2 cents.

Aside from the weather influence, which gave bears the advantage, attention in the wheat pit focused chiefly on the Kansas state crop report. During the early trading the enlargement in the Kansas estimated yield as compared with the government August returns and with last year's harvest, was something of a stimulus to bears, but in the last part of the day was practically offset by knowledge that Kansas farm reserves were figured as being 50,000,000 bushels less than was the case a year ago. Based on preliminary threshing returns, the Argentine crop was estimated today at 187,000,000 bushels as against 169,000,000 bushels harvested last year. Taken as a whole, trade lacked volume, and although fluctuations were numerous, they at frade lacked volume, and although fluctuations were numerous, they at no time got beyond a range of 1 1-4c. Corn and oats, like wheat, held within narrow limits. For the most part, dealings were of a local charade lacked volume, and although Slowness of export call for corn was a subject of comment, but val-ues were upheld by prospective Rus-sian relief demand. Provisions showed no decided change. Packers sold, eastern interests were buyers.

Cotton Market Gossip

New York, December 16.—Buying on a more optimistic view of trade prospects was checked by the publication of the government's crop estimate at the beginning of the past week, and prices broke sharply under more or less general liquidation. The official forecast of 8,340,000 bales was only about 400,000 bales in excess of average expectations, but with market conditions otherwise more or less uncertain, the increase in the crop estimate evidently unsettled sentiment. The price of January contracts broke to 16.80 before the selling movement slackened, which made a decline of about 170 points from the best price touched toward the end of November.

There was nothing to indicate any

There was nothing to indicate any increased pressure of spot offerings on this decline, however, and after speculative long accounts had been reduced the market turned steadier on renewed talk of improving trade conditions, with January contracts showing a recovery of over a cent a pound from the lowest during today's trading.

There has been quite as much comment on the government's revision of acreage figures as on the estimate of the crop itself. According to the statement which accompanied the pub-

Washington, December 16.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Due to the number of inquiries received regarding the action taken by the war garding the action taken by the war department to assist the states in preserving the individual histories of those who served during the world war, attention is invited to page 85 of the report of the adjutant general of the army for the fiscal year enoing June 30, 1921. This officer is General Peter C. Harris, of Georgia, a brother of Senator Harris.

This report shows that owing to

This report shows that, owing to ck of funds, the adjutant-general's fice was, on June 30, 1921, compelled to suspend the work upon its huge task of furnishing to the adjutant-general of each state a detailed state-ment of the military service of every man from that state who served in the army during the world war. Up to that time 4,037,334 statements had been prepared, leaving 472,000 cases still to be handled, aside from the 200,000 cases of men inducted into service on or about November 11, 1918. "It cannot be too strongly urged," General Harris states, "in the interest of the government, as well as of the states, that adequate provision of the states, that adequate provision be made for the purpose of enabling this office to complete a piece of work already so far advanced." A specimen statement is reproduced in the report, and General Harris adds that an examination of this will show "that the military history furnished in each case contains more data than any individual military, history nerviously. case contains more data than any individual military history previously furnished by the war department, or any history that could have been obtained by the states by copying muster rolls or kindred records," and remarks that if sufficient funds had been made available the entire work would have been completed before June 30, 1921.

"This," he states, "would have been rechivement to reingarkable that I

years after the termination of actual hostilities a military history of every individual who served in the world war would have been completed and the state adjutants-general would now be in possession of the military record of every man accredited to their respective states. The ability of the office to perform such a task is attributed. ears after the termination of actual table to the fact that a new system for the preparation of individual mili-tary records was devised during the By its adoption the tremend war. By its adoption the tremendous labor and expense necessary to card muster rolls after the termination of other wars were eliminated, and the office was in a position to finish, in less than three years after the termination of hostilities, a task which, in the case of soldiers of the civil war, could not have been satisfactorily undertaken until 30 years after the close of that war."

General Harris calls attention to several important reforms initiated and carried into effect during the last fiscal year by the board of officers convened for the purpose of considering the present system of paper work of the army and of making recommendations for its reduction, and, after showing that the volume of current work handled by his office during that year was more than 27 times as great as that handled during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1916, the last year during which normal conditions prevailed, notwithstanding the fact that the average number of clerks employed in his office was little more than five times as great, attributes the accomplishment of this feat principally "to the improvements effected in the record-keeping system of the office and in the methods followed by organizations in the field in preparing military records and reports, improvements effected upon recommendations of this office subsequent to the outbreak of the war." General Harris calls attention to circumstances.

The Irish, Lord Birkenhead continued, were a wayward people and nobody was able to say what they would do in unexpected contingencies; but he said that for the first time with due and adequate protection for Ulster's legitimate interests, "we have given a population, which is coverwhelmingly homogeneous an opporoverwhelmingly homogeneous an oppor-tunity of taking its place by the side of the other communities composing the British Empire?" Dealing with Ulster's criticism that after Ulster had gained her complete freedom under the act of 1920 the imperial government in the treaty had put obster into a united Ireland, but allowing her the privilege of contracting out of it, Mr. Chamberlain said:

"The government would never have secured recognition by southern Iresecured recognition by southern Ire-land if the right had been given north-ern Ireland to remain out of the free

Interest now has been diverted to Interest now has been diverted to Dublin and on the position Ulster would take. There was an incident today in which some quarters is regarded as showing a possible turn in affairs. Sir James Craig, the Ulster leader, on arriving in London, told the newspapermen but for the boundary question he might have been induced in some degree to approve of duced in some degree to approve of the treaty. Sir James seemed to have interpreted the speeches of Mr. Lloyd-George as meaning that restification of the boundary would result in the severance of Tyrone and Fermanaugh from Ulster. Mr. Lloyd-George in the nouse of commons today repudiated this interpretation.

Influencing Ulster.

There seemed to be no doubt in parliamentary circles tonight that the approval of the treaty by Andrew Bonar Law and the fact that the bouse of lords gave its sanction to it would influence the Ulster extemists and the nope was expressed that at another meeting between Mr. Lloyd-George and Sir James Craig, which is expected to take place in the near future, a new face would be put on things.

new face would be put on things.
Great disappointment was expressed tonight in official circles over the slow progress being made by the dail eireann in Dublin as compared with the prompt acceptance of the treaty at Westminster. According to reports received in parliamentary circles here tonight one difficulty in Dublin is how to prevent Eamon de Valera from being set aside if the dail eireann accepts the treaty. The view was being set aside if the dail eireann accepts the treaty. The view was held, however, that the treaty eventually would be accepted by the dail eireann and the Irish people. The Joneses Make a Budget-Moneyless Christmas Teaches Jones A Lesson.

good health stays with Jones.

"Lucky Jones," some one says, "I know men glad to work for $1.50, $2.50 and $3 a day."

Jones has a wife and three children. Mary, the oldest, 14 years old, is prettier than any picture. She no longer writes to Santa Claus. But these brisk mornings, when the joy of life is in the air, on the way to high school, Mary steps gaily off the car on Whitehall street, to look longingly at the fur pieces and coats, and the alluring dresses in department st. windows. In the evening, when the carried his problem out into the night.

When the children were in bed, he said to Mrs. Jones: "There's a concern that'll lend me $210 at 5 per cent a month, and take a mortgage on my wages. That would give us $10 for the children's Christmas, and we could pay $200 on the doctor's bill. With the interest, we'd have to pay back $336 next year. Could we manage it with the rest of our bills? It would make $508 in all."

For reply, Mrs. Jones brought the budget, which they made a year ago. The laid the paper on the table and pointed to the $28.47, which they had hoped to have, the margin between the alluring dresses in department state windows. In the evening, when helping with the dishes, she stops to say: "I do hope dad'll give me a neck-piece, Christmas. That's all I want, mother."

want, mother."

Jack, Jr., just 10, changes his mind every day. But an airgun, a dog, a sweater and football loom constantly before him. Daily, he mentions them to Mrs. Jones, with strangely wise remarks about Santa Claus. Little Billy wonders, dreams of Santa Claus, and knows that something unusual is in the air, but he has not reached the age of definitely knowing and making known all of his desires. But mother understands.

anown all of his desires. But mother understands.

Mrs. Jones knows the situation. She wants no Christmas present for herself. But she remembers her own childhood. Night and morning she is praying: "Oh, God. help Jack. Help us to give our children a happy. Christmas, like we used to have at home."

For Jones is up against it.

Last year, when the approach of Christmas brought difficulties and things looked dismally skimpy, Jones blamed himself bitterly. Then, on his things looked dismally skimpy, Jones blamed himself bitterly. Then, on his daily rides to and from his work, he read the street car advertisements of the banks. One urged a Christmas club for systematic saving to solve the whole problem of Christmas buying. In another, the cheery, hopeful face of grinning "Mr. Four Per Cent" assured him that by opening a savings account, he could protect his home from want and provide comfort for his wife in old age.

Jones saw a light. No more pinched Christmases for the Joneses. Jones would join a bank Christmas club and open a savings account.

That night, after the children were in bed, he told the wife. She was in bed, he told the wife. She was enthusiastic. They must begin at once by making a budget. It was like beginning life anew. Pencil and paper were brought.

Jones was healthy. They were hope ful. There could be no shutting dow at the plant. So they counted on 300 full working days at $4.80 a day, an income of $1,483.20 for the year. income of $1,483.20 for the year.

The first item of outgo to be listed was food. Mrs. Jones thought that 20 cents apiece a meal was little enough. But Jones pointed out that this would leave only $1.06 a day for everything else. They compromised on 15 cents apiece. All but Billy could do without milk. They could eat less meat. And 15 cents would leave $1.81 for other things and saving. So they mut down $221.25. year for food.

This left $661.95 to be divided.

Must Be Paid.

Sobered a bit, they considered the gext unavoidable item, rent at $25 a month. They wrote $300 a year, leaving $361.95 for saving and other things.

Jones has to use the street car to go to work, Mary to get to school. For the others, one car fare would do. The whole family would stay off street

Over clothes, shoes, blankets, linen, crockery and kitchen utensils, Mrs. Jones studied long. Her chief thought was of little shoes soled and resoled, a was a little quaver, as she said: "There five of us will have to do it on $100."

They wrote $100 and stared at the $42.92 left for saving and other things.

God mercifully hides the future. If it were not so, the whole world would become a madhouse. The Jonses, when they decided to put aside $15 of the they decided to put aside $15 of the remaining $42.92, to pay the doctor, dentist and druggist, could not foresee that in March Mary would be barely saved from death by an operation. Hospital and drug bills, the doctor's and surgeon's fees amounted to $400, when the Joneses had calculated only $15, including the dentist.

That $15 had left them $27.92 for

He has sent a letter to the committee in charge declaring he is encouraged by the knowledge that he is "sustained and aided by an entire people and that the government of the United States undoubtedly will feel a greater necessity for action on viewing the spectacle of a nation which, united in just aspirations, manifests them in an orderly manner and in the exercise of its rights."

Smoking and Recreation.

Jones remarked seriously: "I'll cut out smoking."

If he would, and if they should give nothing to the church and spend nothing for recreation. If they would buy no schoolbooks, magazines, or newspapers, and if Jones would drop his accident and industrial insurance and dodge all taxes—if no sickness or shuddown at the plant should occur, the Joneses believed they might save in the year. The bank would AST LECTURE GIVEN

When Jones blew out the lamp and crawled into bed, Mrs. Jones remarked: "Jack, we forgot to put down anything for oil for the lamps." But, more than the oil for the lamps, Mary's sickness upset their calculations. This Christmas, instead of having to decide whether to spend $28.47, saved, for Christmas, or to that the temperar read to saving $357.00 to take care of Mrs. Jones in old age, the Joneses owe $372. The chancellor explained that when some time ago the government reviewed the military situation and the warfare in Ireland "which were not proceeding favorably to our cause," it is came clear that a continuance of the struggle would mean a call for volunteer recruits and a heavy expenditure of money.

Impossible Choice.

"Can it be said of this country," Lord Birkenhead asked, "that we were suffering military hamiliation because we decided on the balance that it was wiser to make this experiment in statecraft? A great country can afford to do a great thing in a great thing in a great through the packing plants of the world."

Jones is almost sick. Tonight, on the street car, he was again reading the cheerful suggestions of "Mr. Four South American and manipulating the market. FORMER ATLANTAN DECLARES WATSON CHARGES ABSURD

That charges of Senator Watson relative to treatment of soldiers by officers in France are "absurd," is declared in a statement- by Emmett Cochran, former army lieutenant, who served in France, and, who lives for years at 15 East Avon avenue. He is now in business in Savannah.

He says that statements by the senator relative to a case in which he shot and wounded a negro soldier, are misleading, and that he was forced to shoot in self-defense, after being sent into a French village to quell disorder being created by negro soldiers. Mr. Cochran says that the man he wounded precipitated a riot on an occasion before he was sent to France, by throwing a cup of coffee in a white man's face at Camp Yapshank, N. Y.

LOANS LUANS

WE are prepared to loan money on furniture, planos, etc., at moderate rates of interest, supervised by the Banking Department State of Georgia. Thousands of Atlantans use our money to pay cash for their commodities and more than save the interest it costs, besides getting a long time in which to repay same in small monthly installments. Others use it to take care of a number of small debts which, if left standing, would impair their credit. You can't afford to pass up our proposition without investigating its merits. FARM LANDS-For Sale

WE HAVE an excellent tract of some fifteen to twenty thousand acres of out-over hardwood and short leaf pine timber lands, located in Livingston Parish, Louisiana, between the Amite and Tickfaw rivers, at especially attractive prices to firms or individuals who are interested in purchasing 1,000 acres or more as an investment for developing into farms, stock ranches, dairying, etc. This is excellent land, is practically all above overflow, is susceptible to a high state of cultivation, contains ample timber for farm purposes, such as fuel wood, fences, etc., has two railroads within easy distance, as well as water navigation to New Orleans (a distance of less than 50 miles), within three to eight miles of a large portion of it. It will grow any crops that grow in Louisiana, and is capable of a large portion of it. It will grow any copy of the grow in Louisiana, and is capable of the control of the acre. It will grow as fine strawberries and other truck as grows in the famous Tangipahon Parish, which adjoins it. The purbet artesian well water is available at a depth of from 200 to 300 feet. No commission will be paid to anyone and we will deal only with prospective outright purchasers who will come and see the land, and can astisty us of their financial shilty to handle. Mr. Hampden's Macbeth is intensely human. He simply starts on his bloody career through the urgings of ambition stimulated by the weird sisters and prompted by his lady, and then, through forre of circumstances becomes the bloody wolf at bay. Mr. Hampden's Macbeth scarcely knows his own transition from the gallant soldier and the loyal gentleman to the desperate regicide. He does not take the Adamesque attitude that Lady Macbeth is responsible for his bloodiness. He is simply a creature of circumstances and propinquity.

He does not reach his full power, however, until the incantation scene, though he is entirely masterful at the banquet. Again he departs from tradi-tional handling of the scene by play-ing to an empty chair, rather than to the materialized ghost of Banquo. The scene is thus made doubly ef-

Keith Vaudeville.

Of exceptional merit in every respect, the bill at Keith's Lyric for the last half of the week has been rewarded with enthusiastic comment by the various critics, as well as the hearty approval of the audiences.

The dainty little comedy drama Protter Dunn, the eminent monologist, are sharing headline honors. DeVoy and Dayton get off with a flying start "At the Station." and take you for a high-speed trip through Funville, while the nimble-footed, mellow-voiced trio, Brown, formal slaps with his sword. He again fails to follow precedent and fights his fight in full armor, as all warriors doubtless fought. He does not make the classical error so common to Shakespeareans of shouting his embattled line "Before my body I throw my warlike shield," and face the audience and Macduff with no protection more formidable than an abbreviated toga. He is bloody, bold and tion more formidable than an apprepriated toga. He is bloody, bold and resolute to the very end.

It was a capital mistake that he did not open his engagement in "Macbeth." His "Hamlet" is splendid. His "Macbeth" is inspired. The supporting company, was satisfactory. orting company was satisfactory.
FUZZY WOODRUFF.

Two bold holdups by gunmen, a purse-natching by a footpad, and about fifteen burglaries and minor thefts Friday indicated that Atlanta's pre-holiday crime wave continues una-

J. Mozer, proprietor of a store at J. Mozer, proprietor of a solve at 355 Martin street, lost $12.50 to a negro highwayman who held him up with a pistol on Martin street near Georgia avenue Friday night. The rob-ber was a negro about 18 years of age.

A valuable watch, some small change and other valuables were secured by a highwayman who held up H. A. McClendon, of 327 West Peachtree street. A purse, containing $17 in cash, was grabbed from Mrs. W. R. Melick, of 62 Woodward avenue, ear-

Melick, of 22 Woodward avenue, early Friday night.
Clothing valued at about $200 was secured by burglars who entered the residence of Mrs. Mary Rozelle, at ol. West End avenue; J. F. McKillop, of 65 East avenue, reported the theft of jewelry valued at $150.

From a cash register belonging to John S. Allen, of 52 Highland avenue, $149 in cash was stolen sometime Friday.

A large black traveling bag and a number of valuable automobile accessories were removed from the machine of I W Jarman while it was parked on Pryor street near Auburn avenue, Friday night.

Detectives were working Friday on a large number of other burglaries and minor thefts. Other victims reporting their losses to the police Friday were H. Z. Lyones, of 93 Rogers avenue; J. J. Jackson, of 45 Houston street; W. C. Anglin, of 1118 Marietta street; W. C. Angin, of 1118 Marietta street; Houston Street public school; Mrs. Sheltvern, of No. 22 Kimball house; G. C. Brown, of 177 Glenn-wood avenue; Sydney Harris, of 16 Fulton street; Fred M. Dorn, of 56 Lucile avenue; John S. Allen, of 52 Highland avenue, and George F. Saxe, of 655 Glennwood avenue.

Cefalu Enjoined Under Federal 'Nuisance" Act

Pete Cefalu, Atlanta taxicab man, rete Ceraiu, Atlanta taxicao man, is the first person in the northern district of Georgia to be defendant in federal court proceedings under the "nuisance" section of the national prohibition act. He must cease to operate his taxicab business at 89 North Forsyth street at once and show cause before Judge Samuel H. Sibley next Tuesday why he should not be per-manently enjoined from operating the place.

A temporary restraining order, which prevents Cefalu from operating his business pending the hearing next week, was issued by Jadge Sibley on a petition presented to the court Friday by Assistant District At-torney Hal Lindsay. Cefalu was arrested a few days ago and federal prohibition agents, claim-

Cat the Grand)

Two offerings, "Marriage vs. Divorce," a musical farce, and the American Comedy Four, stand out prominently on the vaudeville bill at Loew's Grand theater. The former is unusually amusing and refreshing by reason of its novel story and surprising ending. The American Comedy Four have been welcome visitors to Atlanta for several years, and always score heavily with Grand patrons. Other acts that please are Prevost and Goulet, in a mixture of vaudeville stunts; Lillian Boardman, "The Little Big Soprano," and Raymond and Lyte, in a sparkling series of dance steps.
